DUCHESS' RECOVERS; SON DIES OF POISON

Treatment Restores Mme. de Guise-Hite After Suicide Pact.

INQUEST IS ORDERED

George Harbough Succumbs to Veronal Without Regaining Consciousness.

BOTH WRISTS SLASHED

Previous Attempt at Self-Destruction Believed to Have Been Made.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1921, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau, Paris, July 7.

George Harbough, 24 years old, son of a Cleveland millionaire, who kept a suicide pact with his mother, Mme. de Guise-Hite by drinking veronal late Tuesday night in his room in a cheap hotel in the Rue Stoch, died in the American Hospital at Neuilly-to-night without having regained consciousness.

The condition of his mother, who was twice divorced, and who had fallen into desperate financial straits, was reported as greatly improved, and it is considered that she probably will recover. Mme. de Guise-Hite laid claim to the title of Duchess de Guise. She had been prominent in the American colony in Paris for several years.

Inquest Is Ordered.

Young Harbough, who had refused to live with his father, following the divorce of his mother, was under treatment through the night of two physicians. He had taken enough veronal, it was said, to kill several men, but his youth and bodily vigor aided him in throwing off the tremendous effects of the poison for some time. This morning oxygen and intravenous saline injections were resorted to, and these were sufficient to maintain life, but he did not regain consciousness. No message had arrived from the youth's father, G. E. Harbough, now living in El Cajon, Cal. Mme. de Guise-Hite's first husband.

A coroner's inquest is to be conducted to-morrow. Young Harbough's wrists were slashed, and an attempt will be made to determine whether this was done during a previous suicidal attempt before he was in communication with his mother and learned that she had taken the poisonous dose.

Mme. de Guise, who was removed to the American Hospital from her apartment in the Hotel de France at Chateaufort, Rue St. Honoré, shortly after daybreak this morning opened her eyes and seemed to realize that she was on the way to recovery. Although weak from thirty-six hours of treatment her first thought was of her son.

"George, is he living?" she asked. "Oh, why don't they let me die? There is no hope, and if George dies I want to die, too."

Previous Attempt Made.

Sobbing she fell into a semi-conscious condition, which the physicians regarded as a good sign for her recovery. She is being attended by Dr. Edmond Gros, the head physician, and other doctors.

The police have completed the examination of the bottles of poison found in the rooms of both mother and son and verified their contents as veronal.

Information that both young Harbough and his mother had been running up bills at a rapid rate and that Harbough had fallen into disrepute is being investigated by the police. It is now believed that the cut on his wrists was made while he was visiting his mother in her apartment at the Hotel de France at Chateaufort, where they reached a mutual agreement that they would die during the night. Harbough was said to have spent half an hour in his mother's hotel early Tuesday evening.

While Mme. de Guise constantly told her servants and friends that she had a right to call herself a Duchess, no trace of any connection of hers with the De Guise family can be found. De Guise-Hite, from whom she claimed to have been divorced in London, and whose grandmother was supposed to have been a member of what is considered as "France's reigning family," has not yet been located by the Paris police. It is understood that Scotland Yard has been asked to clear up the mystery.

Knowledge of her son's death, her friends believe, might cause her to make another attempt upon her life, as she is penniless and her pride hurt by the revelation of her domestic difficulties to the friends who have met her in the restaurants and hotels visited by rich Americans in Paris.

HARBROUGH DENIES NEGLECT OF EX-WIFE

Alimony Sent Monthly, Says Present Mrs. Harbough.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 7.—George E. Harbough, oil millionaire of Cleveland, now living near San Diego, to-day denied, through his wife, Sarah B. Harbough, any responsibility for circumstances which drove his former wife, Mme. de Guise-Hite and oldest son, George E. Harbough, Jr., to attempt suicide in Paris. Mr. Harbough owns a winter home at La Jolla, on the coast, near here, and a big ranch in the El Cajon Valley, east of San Diego. Immediately after learning of the attempted suicide, Mr. Harbough and his present wife left their La Jolla home for the ranch in the valley.

Mrs. Harbough met newspaper men who attempted to see her husband. "My husband is very sick and over the news," she said, "but we can neither of us feel that the tragedy is due to any neglect on the part of Mr. Harbough."

"Reports that my husband failed to send proper financial assistance to his former wife are false. He sent money to her every month. He was divorced from her twenty years ago, and at that time the alimony agreed upon was the highest ever ordered. His former wife's career during all these years has been little known to Mr. Harbough, and the same is true of his son, George, Jr. They have followed their own desires. The boy is 24 years old now and master of his own affairs."

Mrs. Harbough refused to divulge the exact amount of the alimony paid, but intimated that Parisian life and unfortunate investments might have exhausted the funds of Mme. de Guise-Hite and her son.

IRISH ARE SEEKING PEACE WITH JUSTICE--DE VALERA

It is now no expectation that either Gen. Smuts or Sir James Craig will put in an appearance. It was rumored to-night that in connection with the proposed London conference in which Premier Lloyd George, Sir James Craig, De Valera and others would participate, De Valera has stipulated that Gen. Smuts should preside and that the scope of the conference be enlarged.

By the Canadian Press.

LONDON, July 7.—Premier Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa has thrown the full weight of his eloquence and his prestige on the side of a settlement of the Irish question.

From an Irish Nationalist source closely in touch with Premier Smuts and the British Government in the negotiations proceeding it is learned that Janon De Valera is likely to propose in the event of his coming to London. It is declared that he will abandon the claim for an Irish republic, but will insist upon a measure of Dominion home rule, with a separate Parliament for North Ulster, vested with powers similar to those enjoyed by Canadian Provincial legislatures. He also will ask that the central or Dublin Parliament be vested with a wide measure of fiscal autonomy.

The Sinn Fein leader, it is said, desires also that the Irish Parliament shall have the right of controlling its own army and navy, if these should be found necessary. He will demand that the Irish control the police and post office departments, and will ask for full recognition of the unity of the Irish nation.

De Valera will maintain that the Parliament should be given the right to decide its own taxation policy and the manner in which its revenue shall be expended, holding that the power of controlling the taxation of its constituents is inherent in the Parliament.

This would involve giving Dublin a free voice in regard to income taxes, customs and excise and also the right of withholding any contribution toward the defense of the Empire.

Premier Lloyd George, it is almost certain, would insist upon an imperial contribution, because the Imperial Parliament would remain responsible for defense and foreign affairs, although in a last resort he might agree that the Irish Parliament should have some voice in the amount to be contributed.

Then there remains Ulster. While anxious to go as far as possible in placating the South, in Government circles, it is equally anxious to see that the Northern minority will be afforded all possible rights. Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, will enter the conference, provided one is held, under restrictions, just as De Valera will probably be hampered by certain limitations. King George's evident and serious interest in bringing about peace is also a strong factor in the situation. It is believed that if an independent chairman were appointed to the conference now contemplated, especially Gen. Smuts, who is trusted by the Irish people, there would be a far greater chance of De Valera accepting the conference. It is probable, however, that nothing will develop definitely pending tomorrow's Dublin conference between the Irish republican leader and the southern Unionists. Gen. Smuts will not attend this conference.

According to latest information De Valera is maintaining the republican claim, but is willing to give the Irish people a full opportunity to decide upon any serious proposition.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1921, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau, London, July 7.

Gen. Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa, and Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, are not going to Dublin for to-morrow's conference. But after Gen. Smuts, with Sir Henry Wilson, chief of the Imperial General Staff, called on King George to-day the official atmosphere was still optimistic about there being a settlement in sight.

That optimism revolves about the point that there will be a truce pending negotiations. It is still emphatically stated in official quarters that no step has yet been taken beyond talking over arrangements for a truce. That talk, however, has gone far enough to warrant the statement that both sides have now practically agreed upon the necessity for a truce, and furthermore, that it shall be implicit rather than a formal explicit cessation of hostilities. The determination virtually was arrived at to-night that there will be formal orders from either side for a cessation of hostilities.

Neither side wants the negotiations broken off by the untoward acts of irresponsible persons, which might be called acts of bad faith on the part of the actual negotiators. Hence it is about settled that while the truce will be made thoroughly effective, it will not appear on the record as such.

It is stated that Lord Middleton is returning to the Dublin conference ready to assure Mr. de Valera and his colleagues that they will not suffer in any way if they enter the negotiations in good faith. In Government circles, it is said that some way is sure to be found to arrange a truce to-morrow.

YOUNGER MRS. WEISS NOW DEAD OF POISON

Her Demise Follows That of Her Mother, Who Also Took Mercury.

Mrs. Henrietta Weiss of 26 Fort Washington avenue died yesterday in Bellevue Hospital from the effects of poison which she and her mother, Mrs. Frances Weiss, took last Friday in their room at the Hotel Commodore. The mother died Wednesday night in Flower Hospital.

Mortimer Weiss, husband of the younger woman, claimed his wife's body. The body of the other Mrs. Weiss was claimed by her sister, Mrs. Nathan Fugson. Both bodies were removed to an undertaking establishment at 127 West 116th street. Funeral services will be held there at 10 o'clock this morning. Burial will be in Mount Hebron Cemetery on Long Island.

At the office of the Medical Examiner it was said that no autopsy would be necessary, as it already had been determined that the deaths were due to bichloride of mercury poisoning.

The two Mrs. Weisses registered late Thursday at the Commodore, with the request that they not be disturbed. Nothing was heard from them until Saturday, when one of them telephoned for some one to relieve their pain and let them die in peace. They were removed from the hotel, but the twelve bichloride of mercury tablets which they had taken were too much to allow them to recover. Only a meagre explanation of the double suicide ever has been offered. Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Weiss had a quarrel Thursday which is said to have led to the suicide pact.

The mother and daughter were together most of the time, according to friends of the family, and appeared more as sisters.

When the younger Mrs. Weiss was found she was clapping her baby's shoe, and she begged that she be allowed to keep it. The shoe will be buried with her to-day.

FLORIDA DIVORCE HALTED.

The application of Mrs. Archibald B. Gwatney, Jr., for a temporary injunction restraining her husband from suing her for divorce in Florida was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Donnelly. The order restrains the cotton broker from proceeding with his action in Florida until the matter is thrashed out more thoroughly by the courts here in October. Mrs. Gwatney alleged her husband is not a bona fide resident of Florida, and that she cannot afford to go there to defend herself.

RADIO SEARCHES SEA FOR MISSING LINER

Callao, From Buenos Aires With 60 Passengers, Overdue, With No Word by Wireless.

For two days officials of the Munson Line have been unable to establish radio communication with the liner Callao, bound here from Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro with sixty passengers. The liner was due yesterday, having left Rio on June 20.

No uneasiness was expressed by any one connected with the line, as it was explained that possible atmospheric conditions such as "static" or disabling of the liner's wireless would account for her silence. There have been no storms along the Callao's path.

The Naval Communication Service here has heard nothing from the liner since she left Rio. A radio has been sent to all ships at sea asking for information. The Callao, formerly a German liner, was taken over by Peru during the war and later acquired by the Shipping Board, which passed it on to the Munson line to operate. She is of 5,000 tons.

A report was received here yesterday by the company that Eliza Diamond, second officer of the liner Munabro, now at Boston, said that while the ship was heading for that port from Baltimore, on the morning of June 20, at 1:45, he saw a peculiar looking ship of fast speed, carrying no side lights, which came within a half a mile of the liner and stopped her engines, as if to size her up.

After looking over the Callao the ship turned and steamed away. According to despatches from Boston, the encounter took place eighty-three miles west southwest of Nantucket light and between seventy-five and 100 miles south-east of New York. Diamond said he thought her actions peculiar. Capt. Giles of the liner reported the incident to the liner's agent at Baltimore.

SPEEDERS FINED $25 EACH.

It cost Fred T. Swift, a broker, living at Pelham Manor, with offices at 71 Broadway, and Harry Gerds, 1206 Morris avenue, The Bronx, $25 each for driving their cars neck to neck at the rate of thirty-two miles an hour on Pelham Parkway yesterday. They were summoned to the West Side court by Motorcycle Patrolman Oshenheit. They told Magistrate Pater they didn't know they were going at an excessive rate and both denied that they had been racing.

$31,245,000 — A Year's Outlay for New Telephone Equipment

In the period from June 1st, 1920 to June 1st, 1921, net additions to the telephone system serving the world's greatest telephone city totalled $31,245,000.

This expenditure was subdivided as follows: Land and buildings, (new or enlarged) $6,534,000; switchboards and central office equipment $13,997,000; outside plant, including cables and conduits $6,767,000; sub-station and subscribers' apparatus $3,947,000.

This huge construction program is enabling us to gradually cut down the list of unfilled applications for service, although there are still 58,000 applications on our books.

New construction work for the remainder of 1921 from June 1st to December 31st calls for the gross expenditure of nearly $20,000,000, a sum twice as great as that devoted to similar purposes for an entire normal year.

These facts give an idea of the task measured in terms of money of enlarging the city's telephone system to again give you telephone service when and where you want it.
